Software OEM Program

CommandFusion offers a customised rebranding program for our iViewer application (/web/20140921004931/http://www.commandfusion.com/software/iviewer), allowing your company to present a uniform corporate identity to your clients.

The end result is your own branded application on the App Store, with the same powerful functionality as our CommandFusion iViewer application.

OEM Features

App Store Listing

This screenshot shows our iViewer app listing in the Apple App Store. Click on the red dots for more details on some of the rebranding options.

Your rebranded application can be released under our Apple Developer account, which will list 'CommandFusion' as the developer, or we can use your Apple Developer account if you prefer (extra costs involved).

Customised GUI

OEM versions of iViewer can load custom user interfaces just like our iViewer app, but the default GUI that is installed with the app can be fully customised to suit your requirements.

It could be a simple interface with examples of your work, or a fully working GUI with in-app settings.

No license is required for devices running the default GUI, so you are free to use page flips and subpages as you need.

Analytics

Software OEM Program

Custom Integrators

Reinforce your corporate identity

Keep your brand in front of the customer every time they use their control system.
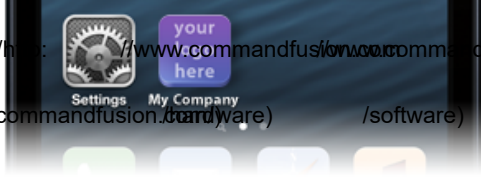

Promote your services

Design your app's default GUI to showcase your past work and provide examples on what your company can deliver. Include your contact details or even build in an automated enquiry system.
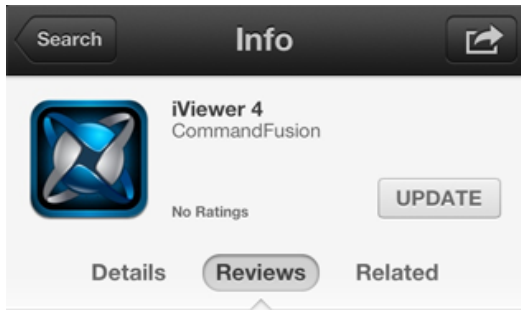

Differentiate your company from the competition

Stand out from the crowd of custom integrators with your own home automation app.

Product Manufacturers

App for controlling your product

If your device is controllable via Ethernet (wired or wireless) or even RS232, the CommandFusion OEM program allows you to create a custom app to control your product and distribute it on the app store.

Highly efficient and effective

Mobile app development is a never ending expensive process. Take advantage of the years of development
